V.I.P. REPRESENTS 21ST CENTURY LEADERS

His Majesty, the Kind of Spain, Robbie Williams, Heidi Klum, George Clooney, Penelope Cruz, Donna Karan, Coldplay and over 400 more Century Leaders from politics, art, fashion, entertainment, sports and culture have gathered to support the licensing programme '21st Century Leaders'.

Charlotte di Vita, who was awarded the "Member of the British Empire" by Queen Elisabeth for her past charity work and who is the mastermind and driving force behind this programme, has appointed Hamburg-based V.I.P. Entertainment & Merchandising AG as its agency in the German speaking area.

For this licensing concept, all celebrities have created a piece of art (their Symbol of Hope) and a self portrait (stick person), accompanied by their Message of Hope and assigned the exclusive use to the 21st Century Leaders licensing programme. Along with the 700+ pieces of artwork the name, signature and picture of the celebrities can be used in promoting the products licensed, also on the Point-of-Sale.

Renown companies have already signed deals for this license, among them Eastpack (bags), Vans (shoes), Lee (shirts and jeans), Churchill (mugs and plates), Virgin Records (charity wrist bands), Volvic (mineral water on-pack promotion) and Dr. Hauschka (cosmetics). Uniclo, the Japanese apparel chain, sold all of its 430.000 T-Shirts (with 20 different artworks), 230, 000 of them alone during the first five weeks of the offer and Dr. Hauschka's cosmetic gift set topped all comparable previous offers.

Michael A. Lou VIP's Chief Executive Officer, is excited to have been awarded this representation. Based on his 27 years experience in the licensing industry, he is confident that the response to this licensing concept will be in line with the value it offers. "In fact, the licensee gets very individual artwork by international celebrities and can use even their names and pictures at a fraction of the price it would usually have to pay to take a license for one particular celebrity directly." The net proceeds go to the charity nominated by the celebrities such as Unicef, Save the Children Foundation, Adopt a Minefield, Wateraid and International Red Cross.
